

Let us learn to live in harmony with each other—between the people of different nations, cultures, and religions, and between us and Mother Earth.

We're trying to grow a family of young people who move out into the world with shared values, who understand that although we may look different, although we may have different-colored skin, have different cultures, or wear different clothes—if we're sad, we cry, and the tears are the same; If we're happy, we laugh, and the laughter is the same.

And within each of us, wherever we are, beats the same human heart.

Jane Goodall